

And so the first round of cuts hits us at work.

The entire IT department and some HR let go. Somehow S and I survived the cuts because we belong to a systems and development pillar instead of an infrastructure pillar. Apparently Nielsen outsources all their IT. Can't say this bodes well for my immediate future but for today anyway I'm more gutted emotionally about friends being shown the door than any possible ramifications this has on me. Save