

I watched and listened as Barack Obama was inaugurated as President today. Every time he speaks he impresses me more. There was a point in his speech when he said ...know that your people will judge you on what you can build, not what you destroy...

He was referring to terrorism at the time but he could just as easily been referring to the Bush presidency.

I truly hope he can live up to the hype surrounding him.