

Kids RESP fund continues to grow

Tuesday, 12 June 2012 12:53

Ok, ok, It's actually my leisure sports pool fund but it has been a profitable 2012 hockey playoff season for me winning two pools with LA's Stanley Cup victory last night:

The Earl of Sussex pool by going with the stars from underdog teams all around and ending up with players on all four semifinalist teams en route to a crushing pool victory as displayed below:

Last Update: Jun 12, 01:42 PST

SUMMARY		MAN GAMES		RND BY RND							Expand All
RNK	Name	TTL	PRI	PLI	PTW	PTM	IP	MGT	AVG
1	Steve (S)	149	0	3	3	13	0	0
1	Kocher, Arne	C	20	1	1	4			6.4 (5)
2	Kocher, Ben	LW	18	0	1	1			7.3 (3)
3	Parise, Zach	LW	15	0	1				6.3 (2)
4	Williams, Justin	RW	15	0	0	3			6.3 (6)
5	Richards, Mike	C	15	2	2	4			5.3 (7)
6	Richards, Steve	C	15						4.2 (12)
7	Blaine, Danny	RW	13						4.2 (3)
8	Quinn, Shane	RW	9						4.3 (6)
9	Couchman, Mike	LW	8						2.8 (10)
10	Backstrom, Niklas	C	8						3.1 (11)
11	Simmonds, Vincent	RW	6						5.9 (4)
12	Vulcano, Shaden	RW	5						3.7 (8)
2	Alain (A)	68	81	0	0	0	0	0
3	Bock (B)	63	96	0	0	0	1	0
4	Boss (I)	40	101	1	1	2	0	0
5	Shawn (O)	47	102	0	0	0	0	0
6	Bock (I)	46	103	0	0	1	0	0
7	Stefan (O)	42	107	0	0	0	0	0
8	H (O)	41	108	0	0	0	0	0
9	Bick (O)	36	113	0	0	0	0	0

And our office hockey pool on the strength of the high scoring Pittsburgh-Philadelphia first-round series and toying with the overall leaderboard throughout the playoffs. I ended up two points shy of staying on the overall leaderboard at the end.

Now if I could only have the same success choosing Lotto 649 numbers . . . .